ENGINEER DIES IN DISTILLERY FIRE AS ALCOHOL EXPLODES

PRIESTS HELP COMB RUINS IN SEARCH FOR VICTIMS

street, Charlestown, was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital suffering with leg burns.

Two priests from St. Joseph's parish, Fr. Maurice J. O'Brien and Fr. Joseph J. Smith, penetrated the ruins for the purpose of administering the last rites to Herman, but he was dead before they reached him.

The entire district, filled with highly inflammable structures, was threatened by the blaze, which was subdued by strenuous efforts on the part of the firemen, after it had roared up through the four-story brick structure almost to the roof.

From 150 to 200 persons, many of them women with children, were in the office of the new building of the overseers of the public welfare, next door, watching the burning of their weekly dole when the fire broke out.

ALCOHOL EXPLODES

Director Timothy Good and John J. Kelley asked them to leave the building, with a number of relief employees, and then looked in the safe several thousand dollars in disbursements money and many valuable records.

In the Chardon Street Home, in the rear of the burning building, were a number of women and children, but it was not found necessary to remove them.

The fire started when a tank of alcohol overturned and ran down into the engine room in the basement, where it ignited and exploded, throwing a shower of burning fluid over the walls.

GIVES ALARM, THEN DIES

Engineer Herman shouted the alarm up to the first floor, where it was heard by Sime, who in turn, running to the street, shouted to John J. Haffigan, superintendent of the Wayfarers' Lodge wood yard. Haffigan turned in an alarm, and as soon as firemen arrived a second and third alarm followed in quick succession.

Going back into the burning building, Sime began to grope his way to the basement to assist Herman, but became confused in the dense smoke and was taken out by other employees.

Those in the building at the time, in addition to Herman and Sime, were Chester Graves, son of one of the founders, who was in charge; James McNeil, Frank Burke, Frank McKenna and Miss Anna Sullivan, bookkeeper, all of whom rushed to the street in safety.

READY TO SAVE CHILDREN

In the meantime, with the flames raging up through the structure, Herman is believed to have attempted to ride the elevator to the first floor. In some manner he was caught, and his life crashed out, the body being discovered by Rescue Company No. 1.

Flames belched from the windows and the smoke handicapped efforts of the firemen, who poured tons of water into the burning structure. In the rear of the building a courtyard off Bowker street was found to be clogged with automobiles, and for a time the firemen were unable to get before up.

Mrs. Crenn, matron in charge of the Chardon Street Home, in the rear of the Graves building, prepared to move her charges, assigning a woman to take care of each child.

CROWD AT SCENE

Flames and smoke began to find their way through the rear windows of the Overseers of the Public Welfare building, and Directors Good and Kelley made the rounds, muting each one. Next to this building is a sub-station of the Edison Company, and then comes Blumley's garage.

Across the street from the Graves warehouse is an old ivory stable, home of numerous horses. In the past, and nearby in the Old Wayfarers' Lodge, together with a paper box factory.

BEARING OUT BODY OF MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH IN DISTILLERY FIRE
Photo shows police, firemen and ambulance men cradling the body of Augustus Herman, who first spread the alarm in the disastrous $75,000 fire which swept a West End distillery today, and then in some manner was crushed to death as he sought a way out of the doomed structure. His alarm enabled others to flee in safety, and the promptness with which he gave notice of the fire probably was responsible for firemen being able to reach the scene in time to prevent the flames from spreading to neighboring buildings.

POLICE KILLER HUNTED IN 3 NEW BREAKS

at the Standard Oil plant was undetermined, Manager T. M. Cobb explaining that a check of figures would be necessary before an amount would be known.

The vagrants were given, according to Chief Sullivan, and as on the Quincy "jobs," no fingerprints were left. A pickaxe, screw-driver, blacksmith's hammer and a bolt saw as a lever were left behind by the safe-crackers.

A circular drilling six inches in circumference was made around the combination knob in getting the safe open. The break was discovered by Gus Laddiman, an employee, when he opened the office early today.

SAW MAN IN YARD.

A second person who saw the killer was found today by the police. He is Louis Riley, a milk wagon driver, who declared that at 6:40 yesterday morning, he saw a man emerge from the rear of the Quincy Motor Company building and cross backwards in the direction of the hardware store.

Like Mrs. Elizabeth Farrar, who saw the slayer running away after the shooting of Hollis in the rear of the hardware store, Riley said the man was a rubber cubber and did not excite his suspicions because, on account of the coat, he thought, off hand, he was a policeman.

A man found at a South End rooming house, with stains that looked like blood on his shoes and bulging his room was investigated by the Quincy authorities and police of East Dedham street station, but was released. He said he had just taken the room and the bullets were not his. He accounted for his whereabouts at the time of the robbery and murder in Quincy.

TWO PROVE ALIBI

Two men, one a Quincy resident and the other a Chelsea man, arrested in Chelsea on a charge of larceny of a Cambridge automobile, were also questioned in regard to the murder, chiefly because they lived in Quincy. They satisfied the police they knew nothing about it.

The Quincy authorities said they had received additional information which gave new significance to the story told them yesterday by Mrs. Emily Hickey of Squantum street.

Minion, who saw a man with a fresh bandage on his arm passing her house.

For the present the police would not divulge the nature of their new information.

The relief fund for the family of the slain policeman reached $400 today and the Quincy Kiwanis Club announced that it had assumed charge of it.

A benefit performance will take place at the Wolcott Theatre on the afternoon of October 11. At Longfellow of the Lutterbach Stock Company Players having offered the entire proceeds of the matinee performance to the fund. Chief of Police Bishop accepted this offer and the police orchestra will play at the matinee, policemen also acting as ushers.

A story by a Boston taxi driver who carried a man to Quincy on the night of the slaying led to a search in South Boston, where, police believe, the headquarters of the gang of cracksmen may be located.

SAM L. WARNER, MOVIE MAGNATE, DIES IN WEST

Third of Felt Goods Produced in U. S. Are Made in N. E.

Nearly one-third of the felt goods produced in the United States are made in New England, according to a report today by the New England Council, which, cooperation with the United States Department of Commerce, has just completed a survey of the industry.

Concerns in this section find a market for about 60 per cent. of their product in New England, the report declares. Many members of this industrial group are planning a drive during the coming year for the purpose of developing better sales and distribution methods.

A more extensive report of the survey will be made later by the Department of Commerce, and this is expected to be of great practical value to all New England business men.

BIG BLAZE IN LITTLETON, N.H.

Littleton, N. H., Oct. 5 (A.P.)—Fire early today destroyed the Union Vail Building on Main street, the largest business building in the town. The loss was estimated at $150,000.

Starting in the basement from an unknown cause, the flames spread quickly. Help was called from Bethel, Litchfield and Watkinsonville, and the firemen succeeded in preventing the spread of the fire to other buildings.

Occupants of apartments on the upper floors escaped without injury, but lost all their property.

The principal losses went to the furniture store of L. D. Niban, the Hampshires, the O. A. Libbey Company, dry goods, and the druggists of C. Everett Furber.

In addition to apartments housing twenty-five persons, there were several offices on the upper floors.

GERMAN ARMY HEAD WILL VISIT BOSTON

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—General Wilhelm Hays, who succeeded General Hans von Seeckt as commander of the German army last year, will sail from here on the steamship Hamburg October 7. He will be accompanied by Colonel Adolf L. Cenger, military attaché to the United States Embassy in Germany.

General Hays intends to study conditions in America, notably the big manufacturing plants, universities, airports and places devoted to sports.

His itinerary includes Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, the Grand Canyon and San Antonio.

NEW BILL TO BE FILED IN R. I. CHURCH BATTLE

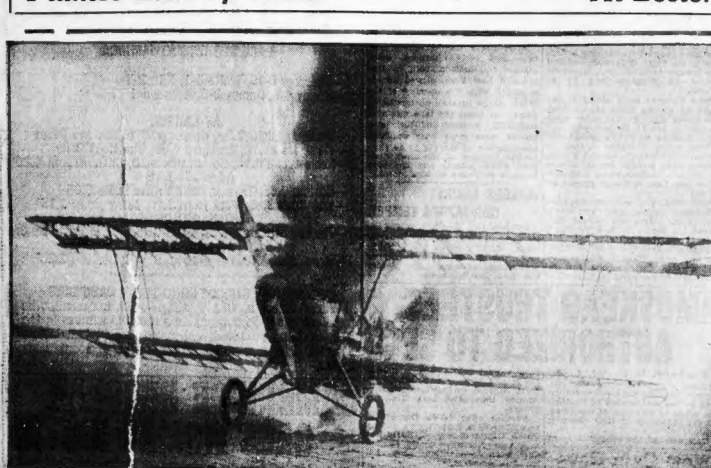

Providence, Oct. 5 (U.S.A.)—The legal battle between Atty. Ephraim J. Delamater and Franco-American followers and Right Rev. William A. Hickey and officers of twelve Rhode Island Catholic parishes was reopened today when Atty. Delamater was given test days by Superior Court Judge Willard Tanner to file a new bill of complaint.

A decree holding that Bishop Hickey had acted illegally in using parish funds for a Diocesan High school and the National Catholic Welfare Conference was about to be entered today when Atty. Delamater asked to be allowed to amend his complaint.

ACCEPTANCE OF $500 BRIBE CHARGED

His reappearance to the Federal prohibition service two months after he is alleged to have accepted a $500 bribe from Martin Sandler, bootlegger and admitted "sweet partner" in a $10,000 Wilmington moonshine plant, was described to a jury today in Federal Court by Frank C. Lewis to his own defense. Louis, son of a New York city physician and veteran of Siberian and Philippine army service, is on trial charged with taking the bribe in return for "tipping off" Sandler and others about an impending Federal raid and permitting them to dismantle the huge still before dry agents swooped down upon it.

In direct testimony the defendant admitted he resigned from the prohibition department a few days after the bribe was paid, but declared he was driven to that act by dissatisfaction with the treatment accorded him by Assistant Prohibition Administrator Philip Hamlin.

He told the court and jury that his resignation was accepted "without prejudice" by the department and he was reaccepted for service two months afterwards.

He further testified that he was not apprised of the bribery charge until six months after it is alleged he took the money and was discharged by a U. S. commissioner in Vermont when Boston Federal officials attempted to remove him here for trial.

Sandler, the chief government witness, preceded Lewis on the stand and testified he gave the defendant $500 in cash in a Worcester hotel on May 21 last year, a few hours before the Leominster plant was raided.

Under cross-examination by Attorney William Scharton, Sandler said he is now under a six months' jail sentence and heavy fine.

MRS. FOLSOM SAYS MIND IS RELIEVED

Concord, N. H., Oct. 6.—Back of the sheltering walls of the house where New Hampshire treats her erring inmates, the tall, gaunt figure of Mary Rust Folsom moved today calmly, placidly, benignly.

The Mary Rust of nine years in the outside world—a nervous, irritable Mary Rust of a Troy, N. Y., cake shop—was reuniting as if after only a few hours' interruption, her place in the institution from which she escaped nine years ago and to which she returned voluntarily because she wanted peace of mind.

During the nine years in which she moved a few women again after her flight from Concord she failed to find anywhere that is associated popularly with liberty, and the thoughts of that black day back in July, 1914, when, with smoking revolver, she stood over the body of her husband, Henry H. Folsom, prominent Boston lawyer, in a lonely New Hampshire forest, kept recurring in her mind.

NO PEACE IN FREEDOM.

There was no peace in freedom, even though Mrs. Folsom, amazingly unregretted, even though a woman of huge build and distinctions unimpeachable, built up in the short decade a business productive of such an income that most men never attain.

Just what has been occurring in the troubled brain of the "Mary Rust" of the Troy cake shop during the years of troubled freedom alienates at the State Hospital set about, gently, to discover today through questioning of the strange inmate, whose hallucinations about her husband, a hardmouthed football star in the early nineties, led her to kill him calmly a few months after her flight.

And the story she had to tell was: Please Turn to Page 4, Column 3.

GIRL'S SUICIDE TRY PERILS 6 CHILDREN

Worcester, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Six small children and a woman narrowly escaped asphyxiation in their home at 22 Elliot street, early today. Mrs. Laura O'Dell, 25, a housekeeper and mother of one of the children, became despondent and attempted suicide after she had turned on three jets in the gas range.

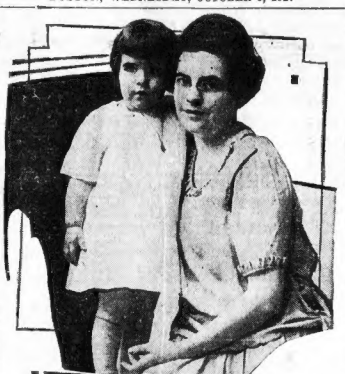

AGED WOMAN POURS OIL ON FIRE; BURNS TO DEATH

Lawrence, Oct. 5.—The old-fashioned method of cooking a coal stove fire along by means of kerosene oil cost Miss Mary Maguire, seventy-five, of Methuen street, Lawrence, her life today. The aged woman made no outcry and her death was not discovered until other persons living in the house noticed smoke issuing from beneath the threshold of her door, which was closed.

Two women rushed in and discovered Miss Maguire in flames. Rushing to the window, they summoned two other employees who extinguished the flames with a rug.

Miss Maguire is survived by a sister, Anna, who is employed at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

5,600 CITY CLUB WOMEN UNDER THREE RULES

One never outlives rules. Their emotional emotions haven't even continually, binding one ever to the rule.

As to it is at the Women's City Club, where 5,600 women are governed by rules.

To these women the following rules are listed:

"They are not allowed in the clubhouse."

And that introduces Buddy, the bearded and bearded clubhouse hound. Buddy is the only four-footed gentleman who has the privilege of the club. He is the fifteen-year-old cat mascot of the Women's City Club and his activities especially haunt the house at and after midnight.

Buddy carries himself in a haughty and regal manner. He doesn't smoke like some of his clubhouse friends, and that's why Rule No. 2 was issued.

"Cats are requested not to smoke in the bed rooms at No. 40 Beacon street."

This is because of fire hazards. But if they must smoke, the front living room is available to their rising smoke screens.

"Smoking is not allowed in the clubhouse."

They can walk over the hours by playing bridge and rummy and bridge, but not for stakes. Money must pass over the boards.

And through it all, besides of the activities of his friends, Buddy leisurely places his attractive all-around before him, living room lounge, and nestles softly in the heated rug.

NEW SHOES AT BROCKTON FAIR

Brockton Fair Grounds, Oct. 5.—Many a good man turned pale today at the annual show when his eyes fell upon men's footwear made of strips of tan color.

It's the latest in shoes for men. And the shoes are made of reptile leather. Others on exhibition were an alligator winged tip custom shoe, fancy black alligator leopards and combinations of black and tan.

Today is Orange Day at the fair. The grangers were headed by William Y. Howard, master of the State Grange. Guests were Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, secretary of the State Department of Agriculture and Frank A. Brooks of the State parole board.

A solar attraction today was the cattle show. Dr. John A. Ness of Auburn, Me., carefully scrutinized some words of Aristotle and Gleaners.

The horse show is a daily attraction. More than $50,000 has been offered in prizes.

The display of sheep is evidence of the interest that New England farmers are taking in the raising of the woolbearing animal.

Tomorrow will be Boston Day and many of the best ten-mile runners are expected to enter in a modified marathon race which will be part of the program.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

H. Wendell Endicott Returns With Alaskan Hunt Trophies

H. WENDELL ENDICOTT, BIG GAME HUNTER, ANGLER, author and traveler, comes home today or tomorrow laden with trophies of his latest trip into the far places. Mr. Endicott, familiar with many of the earth's finest game countries, has been into Alaskan wilds for the past two months. From the farthest railroad point he and his party struck inland and traveled for four days with horses and pack mules.

NOW, AS FRUIT OF THAT ENTERPRISE, MR. ENDICOTT COMES home with a splendid bag. His travels into the country where wolves, caribou, black bears and grizzlies make their home were richly rewarded and now many new specimens will adorn his home and his office. Big game hunting is no new pastime for Mr. Endicott. Neither is fishing. And as for that, he is an author, and furthermore belongs to practically every important game and fishing club from Florida to Alaska.

WHILE MR. ENDICOTT AND HIS PARTY WERE IN THE interior, Mr. Endicott was sightseeing. She and the Eugene Endicott went for a little while into Alaska and then turned about for several weeks of travel about the Northwest. Since early September she has been at the Endicott home in Dedham, with her small son, a baby of a year or so, and the small daughter, who answers to several Summers.

THE LANGDON FROTHINGHAM OF BEACON STREET ARE proceeding as per schedule. Practically every Summer finds them sailing away to Europe, just as every Autumn finds them traveling home again. They are just about arriving now, all in due season to be in the throng of regulars at the Symphony Concerts. The Frothinghams, being devoted heart and soul to music, may be counted upon never to miss a concert in the entire series.

EACH OF THE FOUR DAUGHTERS HAS RECEIVED MUCH OF her education, and particularly its musical portion, abroad. This Winter, I believe, it is Miss Ellen Frothingham who will be on the other side for study, and that Miss Olga Frothingham, Miss Eugenia and Miss Ann are in Boston. The three older girls have already made their bows at the school. Mrs. Brown is making a long season at pleasant "Red Top Farm" in Hamilton, and will not come to town until late October.

SPEAKING OF SCHOOLGIRLS, MRS. JONATHAN BROWN, JR., is to be hostess this Winter to a youthful aspirant seeking honors in art. She is Miss Rebecca McKenna, and will be with the Browns at the Brown town house in Bay State Road while attending a local art school. Mrs. Brown is making a long season at pleasant "Red Top Farm" in Hamilton, and will not come to town until late October.

LITTLE MISS GLORIA GRANT BROWN, WITH HER ADORING parents, the Philip Browns, has been with the doting grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Brown, for September, in Hamilton. Now the little miss has been taken back to Cambridge. Mr. and Mrs. James Crossen Chaplin, 34 (Gretchen Brown), also have departed the parental roof and have gone back to Seewickley after a visit of some weeks at the North Shore.

INGE TO FILM UNDERWORLD

By TOULCEA O. PARSONS
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—Chicago's gummen are just sure to become annoyed if the movies don't stop featuring the boys and their adventures. A gunman can't play his trade these days without some movie company shooting his stuff for a plot. First it was done in "Underworld," which, by the way, is pretty apt never to be shown in Chicago, and now comes Ralph Ince with "Chicago After Midnight."

Mr. Ince's glorification of Chicago's vagrants was written for him by Charles K. Harris, author of "After the Ball" and other sentimental ditties. It deals with the happenings in the underworld tales and I suppose Chicago is chosen as a locale because nowhere in the world are there gummen with such picturesque histories.

Lucia Mondet (Mrs. Ince) will play opposite her husband. And this is an event for her, since nearly lost a date with the heavenly choir yesterday. Her husband, in leaving his car, ran over her accidentally. She had a very close call, friends say.

JANE WINTON plays in two Marion Davies pictures in succession. If I were writing a history instead of a simple little item for this family column, that is the way it would be worded.

There was yesterday chosen for the role of Marion's sister in "The Party." The endearing sister Grace, who manages to make poor Pat's life miserable, and Jane was as happy over her selection as if someone had left her a fortune. There was a long list of candidates for the job and it was only after King Vidor had conscientiously looked at every trace that he made his choice.

I recall that along for she does a nice piece of work in "The Fair Co-Ed." Marion's latest picture, John Patrick has likewise been added to the national list.

WOMAN JOINS OCEAN FLIERS

London, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—The Land's End fireman station received a report at 11:30 o'clock this morning that the Junkers seaplane D1239 had been sighted off the west coast of France in a position about opposite to La Rochelle and 150 miles from Brest, in a direct line across the Bay of Biscay to Portugal.

Mrs. Lily Dillens, German actress, was a passenger when the plane took off from Amsterdam, Holland, at 8 o'clock this morning, but it was not known whether she would travel beyond Lisbon.

The daughter of Carl Hottel, a well known Vienna painter, she is known for her versatility and beauty and is a member of the company of the Vienna "Modern Theaters."

The plane will hop from Lisbon to the Azores and there refuel for the long haul to Harbor Grace, Nfld., founded. The American port of destination was not divulged.

Few Beauty Winners Reach Film Stardom

(This is the third of a series of articles on beauty contests. Each page is condensed from the National Council of Catholic Women in convention in Washington, D. C., last week as detrimental to the morals and ambitions of the girl entrants.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (I.N.S.).—Winning a beauty contest does NOT always lead to stardom in the movies as so many girls fondly dream. In fact, it seldom does. Only about one in ten prize beauties ever get to Hollywood; 75 per cent. never make the grade to even minor parts, but those who really make good "click big."

Pay Lanthier, winner of the national beauty contest at Atlantic City in 1923, is another one of the few "prize beauties" whose hopes of achieving stage recognition have been realized. Miss Lanthier, a real girl of Oakland, Cal., has had important roles in several motion pictures and at present is on a vacation at her home.

Miss Lanthier, incidentally, disagrees with the indictment by the National Council of Catholic Women of beauty contests as detrimental to the morals and ambitions of the participants.

"On the contrary," Miss Lanthier said, "the competition serves to quicken the American girl's interest in her appearance. The wish to be beautiful is a perfectly normal, healthy wish for any girl, not personally I see no harm in it."

"The beauty contest has been responsible for a lot of heartaches," says Harry Rapf, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer. "And quite a bit for the producer because the winners generally have nothing more than beauty."

Director Tod Browning says his greatest success was with Lon Chaney and "he is no beauty."

Corinne Griffith, who was a Texas beauty contest winner, declares that acting is as much a business as anything else and that she does NOT think the winning of a beauty contest "means anything in the movies other than it may be an opening wedge."

Corinne Griffith, the Southern beauty, owes her success on the screen to a beauty contest. She won a contest connected with Eugene V. Brewster's film magazine and later married the millionaire publisher. She has just finished a picture in which she played the lead. She believes, however, that the day of beauty prize winners achieving fame in the movies has passed.

It is significant in this connection that Mary Pickford recently declared a "best girl" contest to supplant the usual beauty contest method of obtaining prospects for the screen. She selected thirteen girls from as many cities in the United States for parts in her next picture. Brains were the prerequisite, not beauty.

Gertrude Olmsted, who once won a beauty contest in Chicago, says that the winning of such a contest "does not make you a star—it merely gives you the impetus to go into pictures."

Similar sentiments were expressed by the other screen favorites who have taken part in beauty pageants. Clara Bow won a beauty contest in Brooklyn, N. Y., and almost immediately went to Hollywood. Dorothy Mackall, the English actress, won a contest in London.

Mary Astor was a First Nations beauty winner; Mary Philbin of Chicago, who was first in a beauty contest; Hope Davis won one conducted by Los Angeles newspaper; Maryon Arya won a beauty contest in Chicago and went to Los Angeles as a screen not bathing girl; Lorna Palmer won a contest in Los Angeles in the competition with 350 beauties and Miss Mary Mills was "Miss Australia," winner of the Antipodes contest.

test. These, however, are some of the girls who "made the grade." For the most part it is a heart-breaking story. The girl winner of a local beauty contest usually departs for Hollywood with high hopes; she finds in that city of beautiful women scores and scores as arduous as she is in the competition becomes too keen and soon she either takes a part in a mob scene or a job in some other line or returns home, a sadder and wiser girl.

Yet today, when the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce is advising beauties to remain away from the motion picture colony because of the unemployment of so many attractive girls, the beauty contest winners continue to storm the movie citadel and plans are constantly in the making for new and bigger beauty pageants.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

CRISP, WHOLE SOME

Fried Foods

—without smoke or odor

NATURALLY when it comes to frying, the most important ingredient is the fat, so I am going to tell you why I prefer Crisco.

In the first place, Crisco fries the food to perfection before it is hot enough to smoke. So there will be no smoke or unpleasant odor in your kitchen or the rest of the house—no smoke to heat your face while you are frying and smell up your hair and clothes.

Another thing, when food is fried in plenty of Crisco, it is beautifully fried with a crisp, golden brown outside and a tender, digestible inside.

Crisco is odorless, too, and does not carry the taste of one food to another, so you can use the same Crisco over and over again for frying different things.

Crisco Cheese Balls

2 cups grated American cheese
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
4 eggs whites well beaten

Mix in the order given. Form into balls lightly with the fingers. Make them about the size of a small egg. Then roll in bread crumbs using fresh bread. Drop in deep, hot Crisco (375 to 385 degrees F.) or when a piece of bread browns in 40 seconds. Fry until a golden brown. Drain on soft paper and serve hot.

This recipe will make ten balls.

Crisco Potato Cakes

These cakes are delicious with chop or cold meat and it is a good way to use leftover mashed potatoes, or even to cook more than enough and have cooking potatoes the next day.

To every three cups of cold mashed potatoes add one well beaten egg. Shape into flat cakes about one inch thick. Put enough Crisco into a frying pan to cover the bottom well. When hot, put cakes in and brown on one side. Add more Crisco if necessary. Turn with pancake turner and brown on the other side.

Three cups of potatoes will make nine or ten cakes.

(All measurements level)

Crisco Apple Fritters

2 cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup milk
3/4 cup apples

Peel and core apples. Cut in quarters. Beat eggs, add Crisco, then milk, then all dry ingredients sifted together. Dip each piece of apple in the batter and fry until soft in deep kettle of Crisco heated to 375 to 385 degrees F., or when a small piece of bread browns in 40 seconds.

Crisco Apple Griddle Cakes

2 cups bread broken 2 tablespoons in pieces baking powder
2 cups hot milk 1 tablespoon sugar
2 eggs separated 3/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup flour 1 cup chopped rice

Soak the bread and milk together over night or until soft. Then rub to a paste. Add the Crisco, sugar and salt; then the eggs, yolks beaten until light. Add flour and baking powder sifted together. Fold in the sticky batter with a fork. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot griddle. Cook until partly done and then turn and finish cooking. Turn only once.

CRISCO

To test your cooking fat—taste it.
Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

GOMEZ CAUGHT, OTHER MEXICAN REBELS SHOT

El Paso, Oct. 3 (U.S.S.)—General Arnulfo Gomez, one of the leaders of the Mexican rebels, is reported captured at Fort Pecos, near Fort Chisum, where he had been hiding since the capture of General Linares. Gomez is reported to have been shot in the head by a soldier of the United States army.

General Linares is reported executed at Fort Pecos and General Arnulfo Linares, according to another dispatch, has been shot at Pecos. Former General Alfredo Rodriguez and General Linares, recently deposed by President Calles, are also reported killed in a clash with Federal troops.

Gloria Swanson Is a German! Ya Her 'Uncle' Says So

Berlin, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—Belgrade dispatches say a postal official at Sendin, named Johann Pfeffer, has made a public demand that Gloria Swanson, film star, "return home, alleging she is his niece."

Pfeffer says he has documents showing Miss Swanson's real name is Franziska Pfeffer, that she was born in 1897 in Sendin, attended school there until 1911, and then went to the United States.

Gloria Swanson's biographical sketch in "Who's Who" says she was born in Chicago, the daughter of Joseph T. Swanson and Adeline Klenowsky Swanson, and was educated in the Chicago schools.

General Gomez has been captured at Guadalupe and charged with attempting to incite the garrison there to rebellion.

Leonardo P. Hurt and Dr. Miguel Hernandez of the anti-revolutionary party in Juarez, have been expelled across the border to El Paso.

U. S. to Maintain Arms Embargo Against Mexico

Washington, Oct. 3 (U.S.S.)—Officials here were of the opinion today that the United States would succeed in suppressing the Gomez-Serrano revolt.

It was said at the State Department that the United States would maintain absolute neutrality, even though the insurrection breaks out again. There will be no lifting of the arms embargo, established by President Coolidge on January 7, 1924, nor will the government permit the sale of any of its own arms to the Mexican government.

HARVARD STUDENTS' RUM MERCHANT SENT TO JAIL

Charged with the sale of bootleg liquor to Harvard students, William T. Smith, a student at Harvard, was today found guilty in East Cambridge District Court and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction and fined $1,000.

Police testified that Thomas Condon, a fruit store in Hampden Hall, a Harvard student, had sold him bootleg liquor, but that Condon's business was but a camouflage to divert him to disperse liquor to students.

Slain Girl Is Buried

Woodbury, N. J., Oct. 3 (U.S.S.)—The body of Rosa, 15-year-old, Sunday school teacher, who was slain by George Yarrow, his driver, has been buried in the cemetery here, while forty of her former schoolmates paid their last respects.

WOMEN HEAR LECTURES ON COOKING

Almost every housekeeper in Boston and her neighbor, so it seemed, tried to crowd into the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler for the second session of the Martha Lee Cooking School under the auspices of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser.

Whatever the final decision on the question whether women's place is in the home, the fact remains that woman's heart is there. This conclusion is inevitable for anyone who has seen the assemblage of the earnest women attending the Cooking School being conducted daily this week for the American-Advertiser at the Statler ballroom.

From homes of every class and station the assemblage gathers. It is marked by a simple domestic character—that of an intent and eager desire to learn the facts and methods of healthful, wholesome and pleasant cooking. It is an evidence that Boston women generally—the crowds are truly representative of the entire city—have a deep degree of interest in home making from the angle of the kitchen.

It is in the kitchen that health is built or destroyed, bodies are inclined to soundness and happy or sadder, as determined by carelessness or by improper preparation of food, or by the healthiest of the most generally speaking, also contentment and satisfaction in the development of the home.

RECOGNIZE THE TRUTH.

The women of Boston recognized this truth—it is plain. The crowds at the Martha Lee Cooking School with their concentration and enthusiasm prove it.

Even the most superstitious took note when Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, culinary expert, gave her famous Kentucky ginger bread recipe to the women of the school. It proved the old adage that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Apparently the women of Boston know that for eagerly they are listening to every suggestion given by Mrs. Crabtree.

"Home making is the greatest business in the world," she declared. "And to be successful it must be conducted systematically and business-like. It is the beauty of a home and the key to a happy and successful home. Let your meals be eaten in pleasant chat and in the best of health. Do not forget to provide for music and flowers. They are the soul of the home."

WARMLY RECEIVED.

Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Hearst newspapers in Boston, introduced the speaker, nationally famous for expert culinary lectures and demonstrations. She was received with open arms by the huge assembly which applauded often during her talk.

Mrs. Crabtree, assisting Martha Lee, is the apostle of modern methods in cooking, under her inspiration, an art, not a trade. She is showing Boston housewives how to make the most of their food, how to make it pleasant, as is also done in the Martha Lee kitchen daily.

In these things Boston women, intelligent and essentially modern, are interested. If anyone doubts it, let them go to the Statler ballroom any afternoon this week from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock and see the proof of it. The doors are open at 1:30 o'clock and there will be a musical program until the school session opens at 2:30. Admission is by coupon taken from the Daily American.

THESE ARE THE LECTURE SUBJECTS:

"The Art of Cooking"
"The Art of Baking"
"The Art of Dressing"
"The Art of Serving"
"The Art of Decorating"
"The Art of Cleaning"
"The Art of Storing"
"The Art of Preserving"
"The Art of Pickling"
"The Art of Canning"

"Curves or Straight Lines?" will be the subject of today's lecture with recipes and directions for making the following:

Chicken and Dressing
Fruit and Cake
Ice Cream
Frozen Fruit Salad
Sparkling French Dressing
Normandy Sauce
Glacé Fruit
Omelet

MRS. FOLSOM, WHO KILLED HER HUSBAND, FREE 9 YEARS

one of the strangest hospital officials have listened to in years of hearing tales of crime and strange hallucinations.

WORKED AS DOMESTIC.

After she disappeared in the darkness following a struggle with a nurse the night of April 1, 1918 she waited rapidly down the main street of Concord to the station. Here she dressed in her street clothes and had money. She asked for a ticket for Troy, N. Y. Troy being the first city that came to her mind.

Her money was just about enough to take her to Troy, so when she arrived she applied for a position as domestic. She was pleasant spoken and neat and easily found employment. For six years she worked in various homes, always giving satisfaction.

Then one day about three years ago Mary Rust, a quiet, well-dressed woman, purchased a house at No. 25 Paulding avenue, one of the best residential streets in Troy.

A few days later outside the door was hung a shining bowl with a spoon in it and above an attractive sign reading: "We cook and serve."

Less than a month later Mary Rust was sought out by persons in all sections of the city. One example of her cooking was enough to win her patronage, but it appeared she also selected only those who pleased her. Some she would not serve.

Within a year she was catering to the best families in the city. Her pie and cakes and beef were famous and no party was considered a success unless served by Mary Rust.

She made no friends and lived a quiet life. Each week she banked her money until by the time she decided to give herself up she had several thousand dollars in the bank.

She took in two roomers, one a school teacher, six months ago she abruptly ordered them out. And then her customers began to notice a change in her. Her hair had turned gray, and she appeared extremely nervous. She kept repeating "August 6" but none knew to what she referred.

ADOPTED BY CHILDREN.
By Mrs. Arthur Johnson, wife of the pastor of Memorial Presbyterian Church at Troy, it was declared today that Mrs. Folsom, or "Mrs. Rust," was adopted by children.

NEW YORK 3
THOMSON ST. 1 CAMBRIDGE ST.
In 1899 Mrs. Folsom began to be subject to hallucinations. She kept insisting that Mr. Folsom was paying attention to other women. The family physician became alarmed and eventually, despite the protests of Mrs. Folsom, committed her to the McLean Hospital for the insane at Watery.

Two years later Mr. Folsom effected her release. For a year she appeared to be normal. Then her hallucinations returned and she again started complaining about her husband.

In the summer of 1914 she went to her summer home at Essex, N. H. On the fatal July 14 she met him at the Essex station in an old-fashioned democrat wagon. Mrs. Folsom greeted him affectionately with kisses and they drove off.

Without warning, when they were half way home, she drew a pistol from her pocket and opened fire. She continued to pump bullets into Mr. Folsom's body even after he had toppled out of the wagon, dead.

She managed a passing automobile party with the pistol, shouting: "I have two tremendous desires, the first is to kill someone and the second is to burn a building to the ground."

A large woman, six feet high and weighing 200 pounds, she was finally overpowered and taken to jail. Folsom was dead, a martyr to his love for his wife.

"I just loved him too much," was her explanation. She was never tried for the slaying of her husband. Such is the story of Mrs. Folsom, who for nine years was Mary Rust.

PROMPTED BY CONSCIENCE.
Saturday she delivered her usual orders. At 3 a. m. Sunday morning a policeman saw Mary Rust dragging toward the railroad station.

That was the last Troy will see of Mary Rust.

Then Mrs. Folsom appeared at the home of her guardian, Dwight Hall, in Dover, N. H. To him she told her story and then she hunted for the State hospital. Mr. Hall telephoned she was gone there.

"My conscience bothered me," was her only answer as to why she had returned when all had given up hope of seeing her again.

Once before Mrs. Folsom escaped from the hospital, where she was committed in 1914. And once before, November 5, 1915, she returned of her own accord, dressed in men's clothing.

She was born in Dover, 32 years ago, and was graduated from Smith College in 1904. Soon after she was married to Henry H. Folsom, a native of Portsmouth and who was graduated from Dartmouth in 1892. Mr. Folsom was a member of the Dartmouth football team.

LIVED IN SOMERVILLE.
He took his bride to Boston where he became a member of the law firm of Powers, Fossum & Powers. The Folsoms had a beautiful home in Somerville. Mr. Folsom was prominent in Masonic circles.

In 1899 Mrs. Folsom began to be subject to hallucinations. She kept insisting that Mr. Folsom was paying attention to other women. The family physician became alarmed and eventually, despite the protests of Mrs. Folsom, committed her to the McLean Hospital for the insane at Watery.

Two years later Mr. Folsom effected her release. For a year she appeared to be normal. Then her hallucinations returned and she again started complaining about her husband.

In the summer of 1914 she went to her summer home at Essex, N. H. On the fatal July 14 she met him at the Essex station in an old-fashioned democrat wagon. Mrs. Folsom greeted him affectionately with kisses and they drove off.

Without warning, when they were half way home, she drew a pistol from her pocket and opened fire. She continued to pump bullets into Mr. Folsom's body even after he had toppled out of the wagon, dead.

She managed a passing automobile party with the pistol, shouting: "I have two tremendous desires, the first is to kill someone and the second is to burn a building to the ground."

GIRL SWIMMER QUITS 7TH CHANNEL ATTEMPT

Dover, Eng., Oct. 5 (U.S.S.)—Miss Mercedes Gladys, London typist, failed today in her seventh attempt, and the second in two days, to swim the English channel.

She saved up her need after a battle of more than five and a half hours.

She was known there, had the admiration and respect of all residents in the Paulding avenue section and was adored by the children, to whom she doled out cakes and cookies daily.

"She was a woman who read constantly," said Mrs. Johnson, "and she was up on the latest subjects of the day. In her conversation and her actions she gave evidence that she was a woman of breeding and education."

"True, she was reticent about herself and never volunteered information about her life before starting her bakery. But no one thought of that as unusual, because she was a woman of middle age and was quiet and reserved. We all understood, though, that she was a widow."

"I think it was three years ago, perhaps a little more, that she first came into Paulding avenue and took the house at No. 25. A year later she bought the house for $10,000, and she told me it was all paid for and that she had put about $5,000 into it. This was the money all coming from her baking."

She said that she had had a small place previously in Fifth street, but that she did not do so well there. This was after she had worked in various families."

PROMPTED BY CONSCIENCE.
Saturday she delivered her usual orders. At 3 a. m. Sunday morning a policeman saw Mary Rust dragging toward the railroad station.

That was the last Troy will see of Mary Rust.

Then Mrs. Folsom appeared at the home of her guardian, Dwight Hall, in Dover, N. H. To him she told her story and then she hunted for the State hospital. Mr. Hall telephoned she was gone there.

"My conscience bothered me," was her only answer as to why she had returned when all had given up hope of seeing her again.

Once before Mrs. Folsom escaped from the hospital, where she was committed in 1914. And once before, November 5, 1915, she returned of her own accord, dressed in men's clothing.

A large woman, six feet high and weighing 200 pounds, she was finally overpowered and taken to jail. Folsom was dead, a martyr to his love for his wife.

"I just loved him too much," was her explanation. She was never tried for the slaying of her husband. Such is the story of Mrs. Folsom, who for nine years was Mary Rust.

PAY FAKERS TO RING SUIT BARES SEE POPE BROKEN TROTH

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—The Catholic Standard and Times says today that the pope has been deceived by irresponsible persons into believing they must tender a fee or offer a gift to get private audiences with the pope or attend ceremonies in St. Peter's basilica.

The paper quotes an announcement by the Holy See that "it should be well known that cards of admission for papal audiences or for special ceremonies in St. Peter's are issued by competent Vatican officials, absolutely without charge or any fee whatsoever."

Vatican to Rome are cautioned to apply for admission cards to proper sources, such as the North American College, "and not to irresponsible guides, pseudo agents or hotel men."

No chance for extravagance if you budget your clothing expenditures

You owe it to yourself to dress in keeping with your position in life. Clothes are not a luxury; they are a necessity. On the other hand, it is equally as important that you keep your clothing expenditures within your means. A clothing budget is the only business-like way of caring for them, that is to say, a weekly division of these expenditures, so that you will know just what portion of your salary is going into clothes.

OUR WEEKLY PAYMENT PLAN is such a budget

it allows you to purchase quality clothing such as Hart Schaffner & Marx's by paying $10 the day you purchase and the balance in 10 equal weekly payments.

No interest—No carrying charge

Hart Schaffner & Marx two-trouser suits	$35 to $60
Other Hart Schaffner & Marx suits	$28 to $35
One and two-trouser suits by other makers	$25 to $35

Why risk body odor

when this hygienic toilet soap keeps pores purified?

STRANGE how quickly we notice body odors in others, yet scarcely know when we offend. Though we may not seem to perspire, our pores constantly give off odor-causing moisture. Yet it's easy to avoid embarrassment—use Lifebuoy. So refreshing, millions bathe with it every day. It gives lasting freedom from body odor. Keeps complexions healthy. A healthy skin is a clear, fresh glow.

Lifebuoy's clean, hygienic scent—which quickly evaporates after washing—keeps you fresh and safe. Yet Lifebuoy costs so little. It is orange-red, the color of its pure pine-fruit oils. Get it today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

CHAPTER II.

Copyright, Doubleday, Page & Co.
IN October, 1933, we have a glimpse of "a tall, dignified, bespectacled young man with blonde hair," appearing in court at Atlanta, Ga., before Judge George Milby to take his examination for admission to the bar. The examinations in those days were conducted by a committee of four seasoned lawyers and had come of the interest of a gladiatorial contest.

Many people were often present to watch the battling of the would-be lawyer and, there being too many lawyers anyway, court and law were not so very different. Judge Milby's examination lasted all of two hours and was the more severe because of the publicity which had attended the applicant's astonishing tenacity in appearing before the bar.

His responses were, however, "not short of brilliant," and when the examiner finally propounded a long and complicated question the judge intervened:

"Mr. Wilson needn't respond to that question. The court himself could not answer it."

A great many years later, when this young lawyer was awfully becoming one of the foremost men in the country, he went to Atlanta to address the Southern Commercial Congress. At a breakfast given in his honor he was introduced by Judge Milby, ex-President of the United States. Judge Milby had addressed a meeting on the previous day and President Wilson was to speak that evening. Judge Milby, in presenting Mr. Wilson, said:

"Last night we had here a man who had been President of the United States. This evening we shall have a man who is President of the United States. But we have with us this morning a man who is to be President of the United States."

In his speech on that occasion Mr. Wilson started off by paying a tribute to Judge Milby and telling how he had been examined for admission to the bar.

Wilson's certificate of admission to practice in the state courts of Georgia is dated October 15, 1932. In the following March, 1933, he qualified for the Federal courts—though he had not secured money on hand at the time to pay the fee and the application bears the notation, "On file."

ONE LONE CLIENT.

If the least business of his firm continued long, Wilson was to have still another impressive experience. He had seen something of court practice, had taken a part in a national Congressional investigation, though he had not secured money on hand at the time to pay the fee and the application bears the notation, "On file."

Having time enough and to spare he was to be in the gallery of the Senate, looking down upon the assembly of legislators—judges, merchants, farmers, politicians, and in that poor—many deny it—court. Above all, attached, as please turn to page 15, column 3.

BEACH'S MESSAGE BY WIRE

Sparks From Blazing Shed Shower Down on Pit and Other Nearby Resorts

A fire of suspicious origin, which broke out today in a shed in the rear of No. 526 Ocean avenue, Revere, threatened a section of the amusement district and drove occupants of nearby houses to the street.

The shed, a two-story wooden structure, was being used for the storage of furniture, was blazing when the fire was discovered by the fireman of a passing Eastern Massachusetts trolley, who gave the alarm.

Sparks from a fire, which swept over the Pit, Nautical Gardens and other resorts, which were showered with water by the firemen to prevent them from igniting. The roof of the house at No. 526 Ocean avenue caught fire at one time, but the blaze was extinguished before much damage was done.

Fire Chief Thomas McCarrick stated that in his belief the fire was set, and added State Officer Edward Higgins to investigate.

The shed was owned by Mrs. Bertha Wiseman of Lawrence, and was destroyed.

TO GRILL SAND DOCTOR'S WIFE

Hammon, N. J., Oct. 5 (U. S. G. P.)—Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, principal figure in New Jersey's latest murder mystery, will be summoned before the grand jury tomorrow to tell the story of the slaying of her alleged husband, Dr. William Lillendahl, on an isolated road near here five weeks ago.

The widow, who refused to reveal the scene of the murder and recant the tragedy, will be put through the ordeal of narrative in detail how her husband came to be found in his automobile on the highway, shot to death.

Assistant Prosecutor Cameron Hinkle of Atlantic City said today he would ask the grand jury for a murder indictment. He did not say against whom his request would be directed.

Mrs. Lillendahl contends her husband was shot to death by two men who attempted to attack her while she was driving with the physician. No trace has been found of William Beach, poultry farmer and confidant of Mrs. Lillendahl, who is wanted as a material witness in the case.

PERRY TO FACE TRIAL

HERE IN COP'S SLAYING

Sergeant William McBeth of the Charlestown police station left for Queens County Jail, Long Island, today, armed with extradition papers to bring back Walter Perry, indicted in connection with the slaying of the Patrolman Harry Macdonald at Charlestown last summer.

Perry was injured in an automobile accident in which his leg, right collar, was killed. Shortly before the death of Collingwood a car was driven by Perry and he was found to have fired the bullet that took the life of Macdonald.

Macdonald was shot and killed when he pursued two youths into an alley in Charlestown, after noting suspicious actions in the vicinity of a Chinese laundry. The youths were escaped and then followed a hunt that lasted for weeks. It was when Collingwood and Perry were driving a stolen automobile in Long Island when they fled from police.

MAN, 50, JAILED 2 YEARS,

FINED $1,000 IN GIRL CASE

The most severe sentence ever meted out in East Boston district court was given Peter H. McDonald, fifty years old, of Paris street, today when he was found guilty of molesting a five-year-old girl who was named McDonald. McDonald was fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve two years and a half in the House of Correction at Deer Island.

Woman Believed to Be Mrs. Forbush Seen on Road Near Canadagua, N. Y.

Canadagua, N. Y., Oct. 5 (A. P.)—Reports that a woman answering her description had been seen wandering along a country road near here, today gave searchers renewed hope of finding Mrs. Anne Ramsey Forbush, wife of Rev. Damsch Forbush, who has been missing since Monday night.

The automobile in which the woman is believed to have disappeared was found today at Canadagua, State troopers of the Troy barracks, in formed local police.

The car apparently had been abandoned.

Canadagua country officials today went over the territory where the woman was seen, while Mrs. Forbush planned to leave for Canadagua, N. Y., this morning.

Mrs. Forbush stopped for gasoline at a filling station here Monday night, and it was believed she intended to drive her automobile to Canadagua. Friends in Canadagua, however, said she had not been seen there.

WOMAN HELD FOR THEFT OF LABOR UNION FUNDS

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 5 (A. P.)—Mrs. Edith A. Foley of 24 Goff street, this city, secretary-treasurer of Strippers' Union, No. 525, of the Clean-makers' International, arrested on charges of embezzling $5,000 from the union, was arraigned in municipal court today. A continuance was obtained until October 26, Mrs. Foley was held in $1,000 bail.

Although the books are said to be correct, it was believed she intended to drive her automobile to Canadagua. Friends in Canadagua, however, said she had not been seen there.

Chapter 18.

DURING Isadora's American tour, her school had been removed from Berlin to Paris. The constant persecution of the dancer by the German police became more than she could endure, and she finally brought twenty of the girls to France where she had made her permanent home.

The house at Grasseville was owned by Engelbert Humperdick, composer of the opera "Harned and Grotel," who was a great admirer of the child dancer, and who had composed some charming numbers especially for them.

Although the composer remained as a tenant in the Grasseville house for many years, no caused Isadora no little annoyance. She found that the affair of an artistic genius did not reach his business matters. He was constantly making demands for repairs, alterations, improvements, and allowances which were more than she could stand.

The girls of the school received the offer from Mrs. William Grey, former Maybelle Gilman Grey, to live at her chateau, but they found their quarters were not so in the chateau proper, but in an outbuilding which they had to describe as a stable.

Upon her return to Paris, Isadora acquired a small property in a village in the vicinity of Compiègne where she installed the girls. The house was an old stone country farm house, rather small, but picturesque, and "in full country" as the French express it.

The stay in the country was not of long duration. Isadora arranged a series of performances in Paris, with the girls forming a sort of dancing chorus. Differences arose between Isadora and her sister, Elizabeth, who had come to look upon the children as her own pupils. Elizabeth was endowed with a passion for strict pedagogical routine directly opposed to Isadora's idea of inspiring education under beautiful surroundings. Elizabeth's training principles ran in the direction of having the girls in the bath room where the children must mark the exact terms of their daily program of hygiene.

Isadora's ideas found echo in the voice of the Mrs. Grey, former secretary of Isadora, who was now the guiding spirit of Elizabeth's life. Mrs. Grey, the good, substantial, imaginative system of the Isadora, realized the girls' wishes with Isadora's eccentric ideas, and he was all for putting the girls through a "sensational" course of dancing and gymnastics.

The climax came when Elizabeth and Mrs. Marshall the girls at the end of a performance, walked them from the stage of the theatre to the Gare d'Est, and put them on board a train bound for the Fatherland. The next morning Isadora woke up to find herself stripped of the results of five years of arduous training. The girls in whom she had placed such high hopes, and upon whom she had lavished such care and caprice, had vanished.

The time of Louis-Durand had offered to build a model school for the girls in Darmstadt, near Frankfurt-am-Main. Isadora had refused the offer, much to the disgust in Elizabeth's house, and she was to take up this offer that the two had made with the school.

There were several "outs" about the time of this offer. It developed that he was merely offering the use of land upon which to build the school, and was willing to give his pupils and butchers and other tradesmen who supplied his house the opportunity of subscribing to a fund which would be used to erect the building. Once the building was erected, his ownership would be ended with the Duke, inasmuch as it was a public building.

Elizabeth and Mrs. Grey worked up a plan to have the girls go to the enterprise, and immediately, Elizabeth commenced solicitation of paying pupils. She turned Isadora's pupils into teachers, and nursed them for the past guests, who were the best quarters to the girls who were in "pension," that they were in the way.

The next thing that Isadora heard of her behavior was that they were determined as an "exhibition" at a great "selling" or "logistic" exhibition. Under a namethrough, Isadora, the girls, who had been educated by all Paris, and day by day and endured all strains of school discipline, twenty-five advertisements of God's tooth and nail.

Tomorrow Fred Tope will tell of the life of Isadora Duncan in Paris where she made her permanent home many years.

Some Pittsburgh Fans Accuse Donie Bush of Hazing Hazen Cuyler

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BENCHING CUYLER MAY COST BUSH HIS BERTH

By NICK FLATLEY.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 5.—Hazen Cuyler, one of the great stars of the National League will sit on the bench while his club, the Pittsburgh Pirates are fighting the New York Yankees for the championship of the world. A most peculiar situation, truly, and all due to the stubbornness of Barney Dreyfus, Pittsburgh owner.

If the Pirates are beaten in this series, it's a cinch that the native son, Hazen Cuyler, will be benched, and Manager Donie Bush, even though of young men has collected a pennant his first year on the job.

If Donie goes he will probably be taking it easy.

Young Waver, who looked better as the weeks rolled by, was put in the game.

And to become a real star in his own right, Waver's game came back to active duty he was put in the lineup. But Bush had changed his mind.

For some years and have been benched with a variety of excuses. Bush has been benched with a variety of excuses.

Manager Bush is known to be a man of few words. He is known to be a man of few words.

Dreyfus had told Bush that he didn't want Cuyler in there, but there seemed to be no way out. Then in the spring, Hazen hurt his ankle and went to the hospital.

STAR OUT OF ACTION

WILL CUYLER PLAY IN SERIES?

In question fans are asking. Bush says his inactive star, who has become round shouldered sitting on the bench, will get in the series if he's needed.

Some Rich Icings for Festive Cakes

By MARTHA LEE.
When you expect to entertain a group of friends at tea, and have a tray of home-made French bread made to give them pleasure, when you plan to make a beautiful cake, you must not neglect the icing.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or coloring. If your hair lacks all life and luster, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp. Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolver. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved. Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign is that it is easily detected in one's hair. It is an acid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

Danderine Budweiser Real Hop Malt Syrup

It takes more than loud talk to make malt like BUDWEISER

It takes plant facilities for cleaning, grading, malting, extracting and blending such as are enjoyed by Anheuser-Busch! It takes Anheuser-Busch experience—the experience of more than 70 years as America's foremost maltsters! It means paying an extra price to secure the finest hops and barleys grown at home and abroad! It means doing (as very few malt manufacturers do) all malting from the original barley in our own plants instead of buying any partially-processed ingredients from outside sources—ingredients which may be good, bad or indifferent. And finally, it means backing up the finished product with a name and trade-mark that has meant top-quality the world over for more than 70 years!

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CONNELL REEFMAN DEAR MISS REEFMAN:
Will you tell me how we are to stand during the wedding ceremony? I understand the bride-maid stands on my left and my husband-to-be stands on my right, and the best man on the right of my husband-to-be. Is this right?
And about the ring—does he put the ring on my left hand or my left? Some tell me it is on my left, some tell me it is on my right.
YES, all these positions are correct. Your chief attendant stands on your left so that she will be in position to take care of your bouquet and train. The best man stands on the right of the groom so that he will be in position to land the groom the ring. You stand on the left of the groom, and when you turn to go down the aisle, you walk to the right of the groom. The groom puts the ring on the marriage finger, the third finger of the left hand. Cannot you tell how any one could do this? I have a great curiosity to meet him and see what he is like. He is a traveling man and I do not know his address. Why do you think he acts as he does? It is getting on my nerves. A READER.
ACTIONS speak louder than words. Since he could easily manage to be introduced to you and does not do so, I would not think much about him if I were you, or take his expressions of interest seriously.

Home Hints

A rubber hot-water bottle should never be filled more than half full, and boiling water should not be used. Tires on the steam boiler, screwing up the stopper; this prevents the steam from escaping, and so makes the hot water.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets. 2—Solution of traffic and parking problems. 3—Better pay for honest public service. 4—An airport SECOND TO NONE. 5—Extension of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness. 2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation. 4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising. 5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries. 6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Aroostook Potatoes

"One-Third to One-Half Rotten," "Not a Single Rotten Spud in the County," or SO THEY SAY

Reports about the potato crop, from that famous Maine county which is larger in area than some states, remind us of the old line about paying your money and taking your choice.

Writing from the "capital" of Aroostook, a Houlton man says that 10 August days of muggy, showery, foggy weather caused the "worst blight the county has seen in recent years." "Promising fields blackened and died almost overnight."

Mr. A. G. Merritt, the writer, says he has visited fields where "from one-third to one-half of the crop is rotten."

On the other hand a correspondent of the Portland Press-Herald wires from Fort Fairfield that potatoes in Aroostook "never looked better." There have been alarmist stories of rot, he says, which have led themselves to expect a great shortage and near-prohibitive prices.

But a Press-Herald man who made a TOUR OF THE COUNTY the other day failed to find a single rotten spud in all his travels, and he looked over lots of fields and lots of rows and barrels. The potatoes are of good size and excellent quality.

Houlton and Fort Fairfield are 40 miles apart and it may be, of course, that conditions differ. We know that in localities much further south potatoes have been an almost complete failure.

Aroostook's crop last year was approximately 400,000 bushels. This year, an even larger crop was looked for. Then came that August "spell of weather." The present Government estimate is that the County's crop of marketable potatoes has shrunk to 34,000,000 bushels. Some, described as "well informed," think the total will be nearer 30,000,000 bushels.

Not very long ago potatoes were sold in Aroostook for $1.25 a barrel. They are quoted now at $2. Advancing prices will help the farmer to make up his losses but "they will not entirely extricate him from the position in which he is placed by the shortage." Dealers—not farmers, Aroostook insists—may take up the crop or a large part of it and hold for higher prices.

Few genuine farmers are in a position to hold on. At the beginning of the planting season many of them were in debt. They have had to pay out large sums for fertilizer, labor and other things and they must meet their obligations as soon as possible after the harvest. True, they have enjoyed two "good" years but these followed FOUR years in which potatoes sold below cost of production and many growers lost their farms.

Large numbers of Canadians have been brought into the Fort Fairfield region to help pick the crop. The pay is 10 cents a barrel. A fair average is 70 barrels a day. Experts have been known to reach the 100-barrel mark. The lack of agreement between the reports from Houlton and Fort Fairfield leaves the situation vague enough to satisfy the most conscientious speculator. We know that Summer misbehavior scandalously and we expect to have to pay for it.

We do wish Aroostook would tell one story and stick to it. We seem to recall having read somewhere of some excellent SUBSTITUTES for the potato. We know of nothing that goes quite as well with a breakfast chop, however, as one of the "big bakers" from Maine's northernmost county.

More Action Needed

Investigations by Government Bureaus Can Prove Nothing We Do Not Already Know About Squandering of Oil Resources

The thing that the country does NOT need is more investigation of the petroleum resources of the United States. This is what was proposed by Senator Oddie, of Nevada, who announces in Washington that he is going to put a bill in Congress providing funds for the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines to obtain all the technical and economic data bearing on the oil problem.

Senator Oddie apparently has forgotten that we have a Federal Oil Conservation Board. President Coolidge appointed it on December 19, 1924, nearly three years ago. The President's board includes Secretary of War Davis, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of the Interior Work. This board has had at its disposal the expert knowledge of the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Mines, the Department of Commerce. It has also had the hearty co-operation of the oil industry in getting all the facts that bear upon the situation. The essential facts were published in the report of the Federal Oil Conservation Board, made to the President on September 26, 1926.

The President's board found that our known reserves of oil from producing and proven fields then amounted to about 4,500 million barrels—a six-year supply. The board reported an enormous condition of waste in the present methods of producing oil, waste of gas pressure, which ought to be preserved in order to lift the oil cheaply to the surface, and waste due to failure to get the maximum amount of oil from the sands. The President in his letter appointing the board called attention to our military and naval dependence upon oil supplies in time of stress and the necessity of making our limited supplies last as long as possible.

The Federal Board, both in this 1926 report and in subsequent statements, has called attention to the fact that if we utilized the knowledge we already possess, we should be getting about twice as much oil out of a given pool as we now extract before it runs dry.

Secretary Work has stated that, due to our wasteful methods of competitive production, we are now extracting a million barrels of oil daily in excess of our needs and getting rid of this surplus by selling it in competition with cheap coal. The truth is that the nation's resources are being squandered and its future defense imperiled by the mad, unbridled competition of producers who have proven that they

MOST NOISE SEEMS TO BE WASTE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE is one drawback to our rambunctious civilization.

We fly through the air in planes that roar like machine guns. We travel by express trains that make a noise like the wrath of Heaven, and our street cars sound like the infuriated bull of Bashan.

The consequence is that most of us have a state of nerves. A recent estimate by an expert gives the loss in the Chicago loop district of many millions of dollars caused by the noise. The workers in the tall buildings become fretful and inefficient because of the constant roar of the elevated trains and other disturbing sounds. They have to speak to each other in a loud voice and it is difficult to concentrate.

Now comes a man from Baltimore who claims that he has invented a street car equipped with rubber tires and roller bearings so that all jarring and jolting are eliminated, and that it requires less power to move the car. It is said that these cars are cushioned by rubber-tires which circle the hubs and relieve the roller bearings, whatever that means.

Anyhow, it is a step in the right direction. All noise is waste. If we could save the noise made by the escaping steam of the locomotive we should have that much more power.

Noise is like force. It is deceptive. When a man roars at you in conversation you are temporarily put out of business simply by his voice. But it doesn't convince you. After it is all over you wonder if what he said was true.

All of the most powerful things in the world are silent. Probably the greatest force known to mankind is that of the sun which silently floods this planet every day with its power. It makes the trees grow and the crops increase. It is the source of all known power and of all known life. But it doesn't make any fuss about it.

Volcanoes and earthquakes are merely sporadic indications of the enormous power beneath the surface of the earth. The silent moon raises and lowers the tides of the ocean and so the low-voiced woman controls her blistering husband. There has always been a feeling among men that silence means reserve power. President Coolidge has gained more fame by keeping his mouth shut and talking little than he ever would have gained by long eloquent speeches.

As an economic asset and as a boon to tired nerves let us have less noise.

do not know how to restrain themselves, and hence ought to be restrained by law. What sense is there in delaying legislation until further long-winded investigations by government bureaus which can prove nothing that we do not already know?

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

ON the dot of midnight, as the sounded like flippers, Medford became a spot for novelists who write pirate and counterfeiting and spy stories. Working overtime ($15 an hour and thirty minutes out for lunch government Secret Service Agents dug up some rusty old copper plates in a deserted place in Medford.

For months all our five dollar and ten dollar bills have been signed to close scrutiny. All suspected bills were washed and if still suspected then burnt in the stove. We became so cautious we refused to handle money except with gloves.

Then came the glorious news that after all those weary months of tireless, unceasing watch the chief detective and his four assistants sent their wives to the movies while they risked life and limb in the wilds of Medford.

As we ride through Metropolitan Boston we meet automobiles bearing signs of the coming political battle. We follow a car with a sign, "While for Mayor." Along comes another, "What for Selectman." All we can see is a large sign and two wheels. Apparently it is a car.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU feel Mysteries in life. You feel them brushing against you like great wings in the night. Ever since you were a little child, you have felt them. They were not merely the things you did not know. They were the things that no one could know, except God.

The mystery of Beauty? If the world is so cruel and brutal as some people say, why does beauty exist? Why are skies rose, amber and emerald at sunset? Why is dawn like a laughing fountain against the sleeping hills? Why does a sunset in the sky—wind blown foam above a wave—a snail's wing, veiled and faded like a jewel—what purpose does such vast and delicate beauty serve? Is it, perhaps, the reflection of another world, seen through this world's dingy veil?

The mystery of Love—of Sacrifice—of Courage and Faith—flaming like tall, white candles above our greed and hate—The mystery of You, Yourself—The scientists say you are only a bundle of water and clay. Then why do you thrill and tingle and burn to this loveless and nobility? Why do you seem to move within yourself like a stranger in a clumsy house? Why do you always seem to be remembering things that, in this life you have never known? Why are you always listening to a voice that no one else can hear?

Mysteries—brushing against you like great wings—lifting you up, like wings, above this world's ordinariness and discouragement. Sometimes you feel back into the belief that life is only that which you can see and touch and taste and hear and smell. Sometimes you feel that world closes all around you like a cell and all your candles go out and you are utterly miserable.

breath at the courage of a flame. And instantly life grows great and beautiful and worthwhile once more and you are flooded with eagerness and faith again. Then you see that there is meaning to it all—and that the shining trail leads on and on.

When you grow desperate, do not struggle and debate or try your heart with hateful doubts and fears. Be still and wait—presently some Mystery will come to cheer you, like great white wings that beat unflinching, through the night.
